These special meetings are not included in the tables and charts above.

2.4 District Orientation Program

2.4.1 Orientation Summary - Leoistic Year 2021/2022

Leo club members are the most important assets of the organization. Proper Leo club orientations provide the foundation for the Leo club prospects and members. The orientation committee of Leo District 306 A2, is well aware of the importance of the orientation program for the members. Hence, the orientation program was planned in a way to provide the prospect/member with the proper understanding of how the organization functions, what their role will be and to give them the big picture of the district and the association.

The orientation committee aimed to properly inform the new members so that they are more likely to feel comfortable with the club, become actively involved in the club, district, and multiple activities, and remain in Leoism for years.

District orientations are planned under below main categories;

1. Orientations for New Clubs
2. Orientations for Inactive Clubs of the District
3. Orientations for Existing Clubs of the District

All these categories are different and the content of the program was also organized accordingly for an effective outcome.

With the covid 19 pandemic, conducting the orientations physically was a challenge for the orientation team. Giving priority to the safety regulations, the team decided to conduct virtual orientations for the first quarter.

First-quarter planning was as follows;

- Conducting new Leo club orientations
- Conducting all zonal orientations covering all Leo clubs
- Conducting club orientations upon request of the existing Leo Clubs

Success Points

Below are the reasons for the success of the A2 orientation team in the Year 2021-22:

- Before each and every orientation, rehearsal meetings were taken.
- After each and every orientation, after meetings were taken, feedbacks were discussed and the steps to improve in the next orientations.
- A special focus was given to find methods to keep the audience interactive during virtual orientations.
- All the orientation team members took turns when presenting the orientations so that they were also improved themselves while doing orientations for the others.
- Feedbacks were collected from the orientations continuously for the better planning of the next sessions.

Interactive Orientations

The team gave special focus to keeping the participants engaged in each session. Since the sessions had to conduct in virtual mode, it was important to make sure that the audience get the maximum during the entire session. Initially, we had a fun Kahoot session at the end of every orientation. To make it more effective, later we included a mini pop quiz session at the end of each mini session. The participants were required to give answers to the small questions and check their knowledge on each session.

Preparations for Orientations

The orientation team worked together to make sure that the presentations to the audience are nice and well organized. The content was also carefully organized and responsibilities were divided among the team. Before each meeting, there was a rehearsal session, to make sure that the team is perfect when it comes to the actual presentation.

Post-Orientation Discussions

After each orientation, the team connected for a quick review meeting just to discuss the feedbacks, the progress, any mistakes that happened, and how they can be mitigated in future orientations.

Self-Development for Orientation Team Members

Every team member of the orientation team was allowed to present and conduct different orientation sessions. This way not only they were able to share the knowledge but also improved themselves along the process. Currently, at the end of the quarter, each member can successfully conduct each session and is well aware of the overall content.

Getting Continuous Feedbacks from the Participants

The orientation team always welcomes the feedback of the participants to improve themselves. Hence the participants were encouraged to give both positive and negative feedbacks regarding the session, they were collected in the form of a google sheet and were discussed later in the post discussions to take the necessary actions.

The publication and the whole process is handled by an anonymous team in the district and therefore the curiosity of Leos is enhanced to know who is behind this task. YOURSELF

9.1 Financial Summary

From the dawn of the Leoistic year, Leo District 306 A2 was determined to maintain high standards of financial handling constitutions. Past year financial policies were properly followed with few extra standards. The main need for such standards was to maintain transparency of financial transactions and to teach the Leo clubs of the district about the importance of maintaining financial standards.

All the treasurer reports were based on this set of standards. At every district monthly general meeting, the District Treasurer presented the current financial status of the district, including the bank account status too. According to the financial constitution, a valid receipt must be issued to every donor to the district. In accordance with this constitution, Leo District 306 A2 issued a valid receipt certified by the district treasurer to all donors who made donations to the district.

Before undertaking a new project, the project chairman has to get the approval for the budget from the district treasurer and at the end of the project the completed budget should be submitted to the district treasurer. Also, all the accounts will be audited at the end of the year. Apart from that, it was ensured that no personal accounts were used for any of the transactions and the processes and payments only happened through the district account via cheque, further ensuring transparency. As a good practice all the multiple dues were paid way before the given deadlines. The clubs of the district have paid all the organizing fees that are due to the multiple. All the quarterly treasurer reports were submitted on time to the Multiple District.
